It is a magnificent spectacle, the music was wonderful, and the marching precise. Among the advantages of understanding individual, political, and international relations in terms of common interests is that it requires neither the intellectual straight jacket of consensus nor the moral arrogance of interventionism. That the forces of right wing governmental, non-governmental, and corporate power have been able to press forth with neoliberalisation is at least in part a result of the continued paralysis and ineffectual nature of much what remains of the left.
